NOTE ON SOURCES

The documents in this collection are from Record Group #59, Records of the Department of State, Central Files: Germany. The decimal numbers microfilmed include 862.00–862.9262. These documents can be found at the National Archives, Washington, D.C.

The Privacy Correspondence Files were separated by the National Archives due to the personal privacy restrictions observed by the United States Government. These materials have since been reviewed and released but have not been reintegrated into the Correspondence File.

The Confidential Correspondence File materials were separated by the State Department due to their highly classified nature. These materials have since been declassified but have not been reintegrated into the Correspondence File.

EDITORIAL NOTE

University Publications of America has microfilmed these files in their entirety. Only duplicate copies of documents have been excluded from this micropublication. However, due to the large quantity of material for the Espionage Files (862.202xx) (approximately 200 boxes/150,000–200,000 pages) in the various country numbers, UPA has only microfilmed the "00" (world) country number. The excluded material deals with foreign intelligence and propaganda activities; many of these documents are still under privacy provisions. The excluded material is stored at the National Archives, Washington, D.C. Decimal citations to documents enclosed by brackets were misnumbered by the Department of State. UPA has filmed these documents as they are filed at the National Archives. The correct decimal number with the correct subject citation is enclosed by the the brackets.

INTRODUCTION

From 1910 to 1963, the Department of State used a decimal classification system for its central files, assembling and arranging individual documents according to subject and assigning decimal file numbers. Documents in the decimal file include instructions to and despatches from diplomatic and consular officials, notes between the Department of State and foreign diplomatic and consular representatives in the United States, memorandums prepared by officials of the Department, and correspondence with officials of other government departments and with private firms and persons.

From 1910 to 1949, the decimal file consisted of nine primary classes numbered 0 through 8, each covering a broad subject area: (0) general and miscellaneous; (1) the administration of the U.S. government, including the Department of State and the Foreign Service; (2) the negotiation, application, and interpretation of extradition treaties and individual extradition cases; (3) the protection of private and national interests; (4) the negotiation, application, and interpretation of treaties on claims and individual claims cases; (5) international organizations; (6) commerce, customs administration, and trade agreements; (7) political relations of states, including diplomatic and consular representation and bilateral treaties, conventions, and agreements; and (8) internal affairs of states.

Subjects were further defined within each class and identified by a decimal file number. This number may be followed by a slant mark (/), which is followed by another number. The numbers after the slant mark were assigned to individual documents as they were accumulated on a specific subject.
