SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

These files document the youth movement of the NAACP between 1956 and 1965. Efforts to develop the NAACP youth movement at both the local and national levels are covered. Local files include material on membership drives, sit-in demonstrations, and fair employment and other campaigns. They often include comprehensive activities reports and often document the voices of grassroots community leaders. National office files document NAACP programs designed to engage youths in the organization. They also include the files of many field workers and regional staff members who reported to the national office on their organizing work. The records document the rise of the youth-based civil rights movement in the 1950s and 1960s and show how the NAACP’s victory in the Brown v. Board of Education decision energized a generation of youths toward the goal of desegregation in American life.

The NAACP had taken an interest in attracting young adults to its organization since the early 1920s through the encouragement of NAACP college chapters. Inspired by depression-era youth organizations, the NAACP greatly energized its youth program in 1936 with the appointment of Juanita Jackson as a full-time youth secretary. From that point, the Youth Department became a major division in the national office of the association. Local branches were encouraged to form youth councils, and the NAACP began an annual National Youth Conference to provide a focal point to its youth movement.

Geographical File

This edition consists of selections from the two series that make up the NAACP Youth Department records for 1956–1965. Selected files from the Geographical File of the Youth Department are reproduced between Reel 1, frame 0001 and Reel 7, frame 0045. These are files that were kept on specific state youth councils and college chapters. They contain correspondence and reports that were generated at the local level and forwarded to the NAACP national office. Selections were made to screen out the many files with local youth chapters that did little more than report membership recruitment. In order to qualify for selection in this edition, the local youth file had to provide some documentation on local campaigns or programs beyond mere membership reports.
From Reel 7, frame 0046 through the end of the publication are presented selections from the General Department File of the Youth Department. These are subject and personnel files that were created and maintained at the NAACP national office. Here the selection process was made to screen out pure office routine at the national level. Editors selected files that document the formulation and execution of NAACP Youth Department policies as well as files that illustrate relationships between the Youth Department and other organizations or public agencies.

The Geographical File is arranged alphabetically by state. Thereunder the arrangement is alphabetical by local jurisdiction and college name. The files document a wide range of activities, including leadership training, career guidance, appreciation of African American culture and history, and relationships with other organizations in the civil rights movement. There are numerous voter registration campaigns and scattered episodes of involvement in direct-action campaigns such as sit-ins, boycotts, and demonstrations. Fund-raising was often done in social contexts, and the files document many social events, some of them interracial in character. Many of the fund-raising records show that the NAACP youth movement provided substantial financial assistance to many civil rights initiatives, such as the 1955 Montgomery bus boycott; the Tallahassee, Florida, student demonstrations; and other major southern demonstrations. Youth councils were also involved in supporting federal and state civil rights legislation, sending members to mass demonstrations such as the 1957 Prayer Pilgrimage and the 1963 March on Washington, as well as publicizing the status of pending legislation and encouraging members to petition their elected representatives. Youth councils also pressed for employment opportunities for African Americans and exposed episodes of employment discrimination. The councils assisted college students, who were dismissed from southern colleges because of protest activities, to find placements in more hospitable institutions of higher learning. Some local youth chapters produced regular newsletters and forwarded copies to the national office. Speaking engagements by prominent African Americans are also recorded, some with NAACP national officials, some by eminent outsiders such as W. E. B. Du Bois and Malcolm X.

General Department File

The General Department File is arranged alphabetically by subject. Primary topics include “Career Conference,” “Citizenship Training Conference,” “Discrimination in Campus Organizations and Activities,” “Handbooks, Manuals, and Pamphlets,” “National Youth Work Committee,” “Organizing Youth Chapters and College Councils,” and “Sit-In Demonstrations.” Mixed in with the many subject files are the files of NAACP National Youth Secretary, Laplois Ashford (1962–1965) and his predecessor, Herbert L. Wright (1951– 1962), as well as files for “Field Staff” members. There is also an extensive series of files on relations with other organizations, titled “Leagues and Organizations.”

One of the best keys to the entire NAACP youth movement is the file of annual reports filed under “Reports” at frame 0750 of Reel 16. These reports (which run only through 1962) provide a bird’s eye view of how the NAACP Youth Department tried to coordinate national support for the surging civil rights movement as early as the 1950s. They also document the impressive scope of spontaneous local NAACP youth actions, including sit-ins, demonstrations, charitable work, citizenship training, and political activism. In 1960, for example, NAACP youth chapters had been involved in 156 local sit-in demonstrations. In addition the NAACP set up local and regional career conferences to explore ways to combat the high school drop-out rate and academic underachievement among African Americans. A greater level of detail on each of these activities can be found in the “Monthly Reports” files, which appear on Reel 17, frames 0001 through 0361. Monthly reports run through 1964.

After the Reports files, the personnel files of the national youth secretaries, Laplois Ashford (Reel 7, frames 0113 through 0324), Eugene Hampton (Reel 10, frames 0611 through 0622), and Herbert Wright (Reel 18, frame 0761 through Reel 20, frame 0027) provide another level of detail on the national office’s relationship with the youth movement. Also helpful are the files of “Form Letters” (Reel 10, frames 0255 through 0567) generated by Ashford and Wright as circular communications to youth councils and college chapters. Also essential for appraising the National Youth Department are the files of “Handbooks, Manuals, and Pamphlets” (Reel 10, frames 0623 through 0932). These files contain copies of Youth Department handbooks that provide instruction on leadership training, duties of NAACP youth officers, youth council election and administration procedures, and ways to evaluate the effectiveness of local youth organizations.

By the early 1960s, the Youth Department was able to budget for a field staff to assist the national youth secretary. Files on many of these field staff members can be found from Reel 9, frame 0120 through Reel 10, frame 0254. These files supplement the detailed “Monthly Reports” noted above, as well as the Geographical Files. The “Field Staff” files provide additional detail on many local civil rights initiatives during the 1960s. They also often include valuable biographical descriptions of the staff members. In addition to the Field Staff series, there are scattered files of temporary Youth Department employees and local youth officers filed alphabetically under the last name of the staffer. These also often include details on local civil rights initiatives. Named staffers include: Bruce Baines (Reel 7, frames 0350 through 0369);
Leonard H. Carter (Reel 7, frames 0895 through 0904); B. Elton Cox (Reel 8, frames 0450 through 0636); Charles Evers (Reel 9, frames 0110 through 0119); William H. Hardy (Reel 10, frames 0933 through 0984); Carolyn Quillon (Reel 16, frames 0724 through 0749); Mark Rosenman (Reel 17, frames 0362 through 0410); and Julia Wright (Reel 20, frames 0028 through 0430).

Major subject files in the General Department File provide documentation on specific initiatives. The “Career Conference” files (Reel 7, frames 0420 through 0785) document NAACP efforts to provide career guidance to African American youth. These were regional conferences that offered instruction on seeking both better employment and educational opportunities. The conferences were initiated in a context of rampant employment discrimination and discriminatory educational “tracking” of African Americans out of professional and executive career paths.

The “Coordinating Council” series (Reel 8, frames 0124 through 0449) documents the work of the Coordinating Council of New York City area youth councils.

“Discrimination in Campus Organizations and Activities” (Reel 8, frames 0755 through 0896) documents NAACP efforts to combat discriminatory practices by college fraternities and sororities and in student housing policies.

“National Youth Work Committee” (Reel 14, frames 0604 through 0955) documents the work of an NAACP steering committee on the youth program. This committee made regular evaluations of the youth program. The committee was composed of a wide geographical representation of local NAACP leaders who reported on the efficacy of the NAACP youth program in their localities. It submitted annual reports to the NAACP Annual Convention, which are included in this series.

“New England Regional Conference” (Reel 15, frames 0023 through 0282) documents the work of NAACP youth organizations in New England.

“Organizing Youth Councils and College Chapters” (Reel 15, frame 0291 through Reel 16, frame 0169) is composed of a general file and five files arranged by state. The general file includes organizing manuals and instructions for NAACP youth organizations. The state files include applications to form NAACP youth organizations and requests for advice on organizing at the local level with replies from national youth program officers.

“Scholarship Projects” (Reel 17, frames 0632 through 0740) and “Summer Youth Work” (Reel 18, frames 0023 through 0159) document two Youth Department programs targeted at college students. The scholarship program assisted eligible college applicants and students in their search for financial aid. The summer youth work program offered summer work in the civil rights movement for college students. The “Teacher Integration Program” (Reel 18, frames 0204 through 0300) recruited African American college graduates to serve as teachers in the interest of providing African American role models to whites and integrating public school faculties.

“White House Conference on Children and Youth” is extensively documented (Reel 18, frames 0378 through 0656). This conference was held in 1960 at the behest of numerous youth and child welfare organizations. The purpose of the conference was to devise ways to promote opportunities for children and youth to realize their full potential for living lives of freedom and dignity. The NAACP Youth Department assumed a conspicuous role in the conference and pushed it to consider the impact of racial segregation in schools and other facets of American life affecting youths.

A large series titled “Leagues and Organizations” (Reel 11, frame 0150 through Reel 13, frame 0490) documents the relations between the NAACP Youth Department and scores of other organizations active in the civil rights movement. This series is organized alphabetically by name of the organization. Among the many organizations that the NAACP Youth Department worked with during this period are: American Jewish Committee, Students for a Democratic Society, the U.S. National Student Association, National Federation of Catholic College Students, White House Conference on Children and Youth, the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, B’nai B’rith Youth Organization, National Conference of Christians and Jews, Jack and Jill Clubs of America, African American Student Foundation, National Social Welfare Assembly, and the American Friends Service Committee.

Researchers should note that there are several related editions of UPA’s microform collection, Papers of the NAACP, that further document the youth movement. For the period before 1955, Papers of the NAACP, Part 19: Series A, B, and C contain files of the Youth Department dating from 1919 through 1955. For the contemporary period, 1956–1965, the Supplements to Part 1: 1956–1960 and 1961–1965 include the records of the Annual Youth Conferences. Also for the contemporary period, Papers of the NAACP, Part 21: Relations with the Modern Civil Rights Movement contains much of relevance to the youth movement.
NOTE ON SOURCES

The records for this microfilm publication are drawn from the NAACP collection at the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. The Youth File constitutes Series E of the collection. The period from 1956 through 1965 is collected in accession Group III of the collection.

EDITORIAL NOTE

This edition is the result of a survey of the NAACP Youth Department records for Group III, 1956–1965 made by Professors August Meier and John H. Bracey Jr. The entire Geographical File and General Department File were surveyed, and selections were made with the purpose of screening office routine and simple membership lists from the edition. Each file folder selected has been microfilmed in its entirety.

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major topics, personalities, activities, and programs in this microform publication. The first number after each subentry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which a particular file folder containing information on the subject begins. Hence, 17: 0756 directs the researcher to the folder that begins at Frame 0756 of Reel 17. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial segment of this guide, the researcher will find the folder title, inclusive dates, and a list of Major Topics and Principal Correspondents, arranged in the order in which they appear on the film. If the only mention of a company or entity is in relation to a discrimination complaint, the user will find the name in the entry on Racial discrimination.
