INTRODUCTION

In the period since World War II, the Middle East has been the scene of one conflict after another, as tensions both between nations and within nations have erupted into wars, revolutions, and terrorist activities that have had widespread diplomatic, military, and economic ramifications throughout the region and the rest of the world. Of all the problems that have plagued the Middle East during the past fifty years, those connected with Palestine-Israel have been the most explosive and chronically divisive. Although certainly not the only focus of trouble in the region, Palestine-Israel has been at the center of a continuing series of controversies and conflicts, and anyone interested in Middle Eastern affairs will want to study the evolution of this issue. Now, with the additional publication of the State Department's formerly confidential files on Palestine-Israel for the period 1960–1963, such study is made possible.

The State Department Central Files on the internal and foreign affairs of Palestine-Israel from 1960 to 1963 are the definitive source of diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments in Palestine-Israel during a crucial period that included events that were to shape the future of the entire Middle East. These included the great power rivalry and the cold war; natural resources; activities of the United Nations Truce Organization; Israeli drive for nuclear capability; the growing arms race; and continued militancy of the United Arab Republic and its leader, Gamal Abdel Nasser. Moreover, the 1960–1963 period was marked by vigorous debate within Israel on the policies and direction of the evolving Jewish state, by the continuing strong ties between the United States and Israel, by cross-border terrorist clashes and Israeli retaliation, by the desire for easing of tensions between Israel and its Arab neighbors, by government crises and conflicts of leadership dynamics, and by the ever-present Palestinian refugee problem and their militancy.

These and many other elements of Palestinian-Israeli affairs were observed and reported by American diplomatic personnel. These “at-the-scene” reports constitute the largest component of the Central Files materials on Palestine-Israel. Additionally, there are reports and correspondence to and from the Office of the Secretary of State; the State Department's Office of Middle Eastern Affairs, particularly the Israel Office; the White House; the Defense Department, including military attachés; the Central Intelligence Agency; the Federal Bureau of Investigation; American and international Jewish organizations; and American diplomatic posts in Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Great Britain, and elsewhere. Of particular interest to students of Middle Eastern affairs is the large amount of material on American consultation with Arab governments regarding arms control, the ever-present refugee problem, the Palestine partition issues, and the proposed establishment of a Palestinian government entity.

U.S. Military Aid and Middle East Arms Race

Since World War II, few nations have felt a greater need than Israel to be prepared for military conflict. When asked in March of 1960 about the danger of war in the Near East, General Moshe Dayan said: "I don't believe that the Arab states are strong enough to defy and defeat Israel. But we remain vigilant because they receive massive supplies of arms and we know that, if they felt themselves strong enough, they would not hesitate to realize their threat to attack us." Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files for 1960 through January 1963 give the researcher a view of the diplomatic maneuvering required for Israel to obtain the weapons and military technology necessary to remain one step ahead of the Middle East nations that threatened her.

Israel had been able to buy military supplies from European sources, especially France, for many years, but it had been unsuccessful in obtaining ground-to-air "Hawk" missiles from the United States. When it became known that Egypt planned to double the size of its army in a five-year program, Israel increased the pressure on the United States. U.S. objections to completing the sale were based largely on a reluctance to contribute to an arms race in the Middle East; a wish to maintain an appearance of impartiality, and fear of an Arab uproar. Following an evaluation of equipment sold by the Communist bloc to Egypt, Syria, and Iraq in 1961 and 1962, the United States finally agreed to sell the "Hawk" missiles to Israel in September of 1962. These State Department files chronicle the stated position of the United States to support the integrity and independence of Israel and the other Middle Eastern countries.

U.S. Foreign Aid and Israeli Economic Strength

Israel made tremendous strides in its economic growth during this period. Industry and agriculture continued to flourish and markets expanded in Europe, Asia, and Africa. Meanwhile, the United States continued its large-scale financial assistance. Documents contained in these files describe, for example, the efforts of Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir to secure increased economic assistance. In 1961 Israel received $86.5 million in all categories of U.S. government assistance. The Israelis argued, however, that they had reason to expect $116 million. In 1962 Israel requested the $30 million not received the previous year plus an increase of $12 million, for a total of $128.5 million. Meanwhile the United States was supplying Egypt with $150 million yearly in surplus food.

Political Democracy and the Lavon Affair

These files also examine a period of tremendous political turmoil in the Israeli national parliament, the Knesset. The political configuration of the Knesset had remained largely unchanged for several years. In 1960, however, new developments in what was known as the "Lavon Affair" led to a splintering of the controlling Mapai party. The affair began in 1955 when a bombing in Cairo that killed several people was traced to Israeli agents. Minister of Defense Pinhas Lavon was blamed and forced to resign. But incongruities that were revealed in documents reviewed in 1960 led Lavon to charge that he had been framed. Special hearings of the Knesset foreign affairs and security committee concluded that enough perjury had taken place in 1955 to render the findings against Lavon invalid. Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, leader of the Mapai Party and a rival of Lavon, disputed the findings and threatened to resign. In February 1961 Ben-Gurion did resign, but the Mapai Central Committee immediately expelled Lavon and asked Ben-Gurion to reconsider. The Mapai suffered a definitive split. New elections were held and Ben-Gurion was able to put together a shaky coalition, but with a smaller base his strength was restricted and he resigned for good in 1963.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, 1960–January 1963

The U.S. State Department Central Files are the definitive source of American diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments throughout the world in the twentieth century. Surpassing the scope of the State Department's Foreign Relations of the United States (FRUS) series, the Central Files provide extensive coverage of all political, military, social, and economic matters relating to a particular country and/or world event.

The State Department Central Files for 1960–January 1963 cover a crucial period in U.S. and world history. Each part of the 1960–January 1963 series contains a wide range of primary materials: special reports and observations on political and military affairs; studies and statistics on socioeconomic matters; interviews and minutes of meetings with U.S. and foreign government officials and leaders; legal and claims documentation; full texts of important letters and cables sent and received by U.S. diplomats and embassy personnel; reports, news clippings, and translations from journals and newspapers; and countless high-level/head of state government documents, including speeches, memoranda, official reports, aide-mémoire, and transcripts of political meetings and assemblies.

In addition, these records offer new insights into the evolution of American foreign policy toward both allies and adversaries and into the shaping of the policies of these countries toward the United States. Of even greater importance for the study of individual countries is the comprehensive manner in which the Central Files illuminate the internal affairs of foreign countries. There are thousands of pages arranged topically and chronologically on crucial subjects: political parties, unrest and revolution, human rights, government administration, fiscal and monetary issues, labor, housing, police and crime, public health and works, national defense, military equipment and supplies, foreign policy making, wars and alliances, education, religion, culture, trade, industry, and natural resources. On these subjects and more, the Central Files offer authoritative, in-depth, and timely documentation and analysis.

SOURCE NOTE

Microfilmed from the holdings of the National Archives, College Park, MD, Record Group 59: Records of the Department of State, Central Decimal Files, decimal numbers 784, 884, and 984 (Palestine internal affairs); 784A, 884A, and 984A (Israel internal affairs); 684 and 611.84 (Palestine foreign affairs); and 684A and 611.84A (Israel foreign affairs) for the period 1960–January 1963. All available original documents have been microfilmed.

ORGANIZATION OF THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE DECIMAL FILING SYSTEM

From 1910 to 1963 the Department of State used a decimal classification system to organize its Central Files. This system assembled and arranged individual documents according to their subject, with each subject having a specific decimal code. The decimal system from 1950 to January 1963 consists of ten primary classifications numbered 0 through 9, each covering a broad subject area.

CLASS 0: Miscellaneous.

CLASS 1: Administration of the United States Government.

CLASS 2: Protection of Interests (Persons and Property).

CLASS 3: International Conferences, Congresses, Meetings, and Organizations.

CLASS 4: International Trade and Commerce. Trade Relations. Customs Administration.

CLASS 5: International Informational and Educational Relations. Cultural Affairs. Psychological Warfare.

CLASS 6: International Political Relations. Bilateral Treaties.

CLASS 7: Internal Political and National Defense Affairs.

CLASS 8: Internal Economic, Industrial, and Social Affairs.

CLASS 9: Other Internal Affairs. Communications. Transportation. Science.

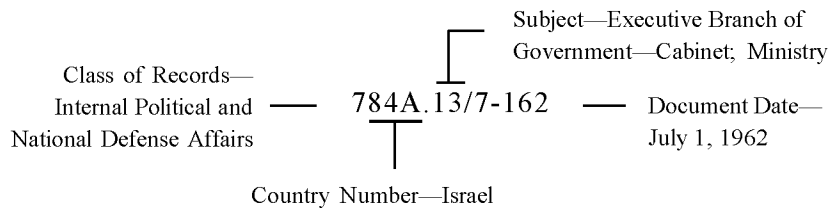

Internal Affairs

For this section of the U.S. State Department Central Files, University Publications of America (UPA) has microfilmed the documents contained in Classes 7, 8, and 9. Within these classes each subject is defined by a decimal file number. The decimal file number is followed by a slant mark (/). The number after the slant mark (/) refers to the date on which the document was generated. Documents within each decimal file number are arranged in chronological order. The entire decimal file number is stamped on the right side of the first page of every document.

These classes are concerned almost exclusively with the internal matters of individual countries. The class number (7, 8, or 9) is followed by the country number. The number following the decimal point indicates subtopics within the major classifications. The date after the slant mark (/) identifies the individual document.

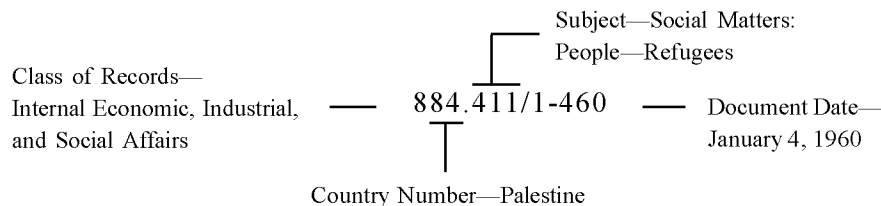

In a small number of instances, documents were assigned erroneous or incomplete decimal numbers. UPA has included, in brackets, corrected decimal entries. In addition, misfiled decimal number documents have also been included in brackets. See, e.g., 5: 0892; 8: 0370; 12: 0902; and 13: 0047, 0069.

CLASS 7. Example, 784A.13/7-162

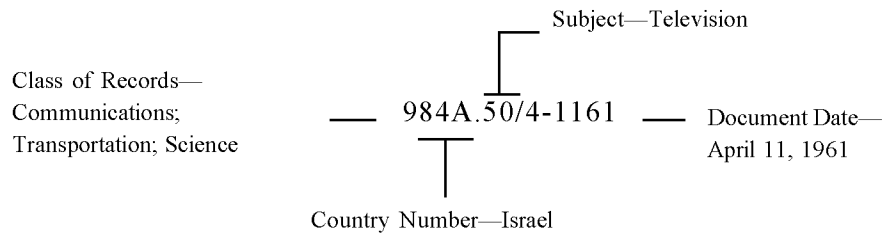

784A.13/7-162 indicates a document dated July 1, 1962, relating to the cabinet of the executive branch of government (13) in Israel (84A).

CLASS 8. Example, 884.411/1-460

884.411/1-460 indicates a document dated January 4, 1960, relating to refugees (411) in Palestine (84).

CLASS 9. Example, 984A.50/4-1161

984A.50/4-1161 indicates a document dated April 11, 1961, relating to television (50) in Israel (84A).

Note: For the convenience of the researcher, wherever a specific classification number totals more than one hundred pages, a breakdown of the material by month and year is provided. Where applicable, major subjects have been included with the month and year breakdown.

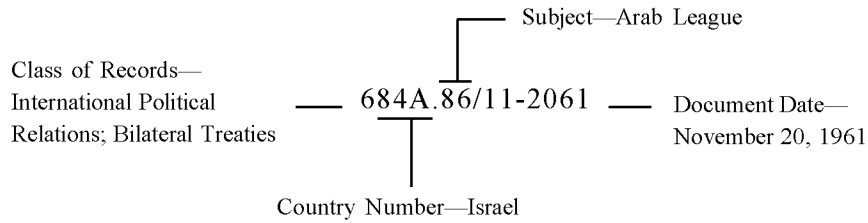

Foreign Affairs

For this section of the U.S. State Department Central Files, UPA has microfilmed the documents contained in Class 6. Within this class, each subject is defined by a decimal file number. The decimal file number is followed by a slant mark (/). The number after the slant mark (/) refers to the date on which the document was generated. Documents within each decimal file number are arranged in chronological order. The entire decimal file number is stamped on the right side of the first page of every document.

In this publication, records classified 684 and 684A deal with the foreign policy of Palestine and Israel and its political relations with other nations. Due to the State Department's arrangement of these records, countries assigned numbers below 84 will not be found in this file. UPA, however, has included files dealing with the political relations between the United States (country number 11) and Palestine (84) and Israel (84A) in this publication. In order to find the political relations between Israel and Palestine and countries other than the United States that have a number lower than 84, the researcher should check the Class 6 records for that country. These records can be found either at the National Archives, College Park, Maryland, or, for many countries, in microform publications that UPA has made available for libraries.

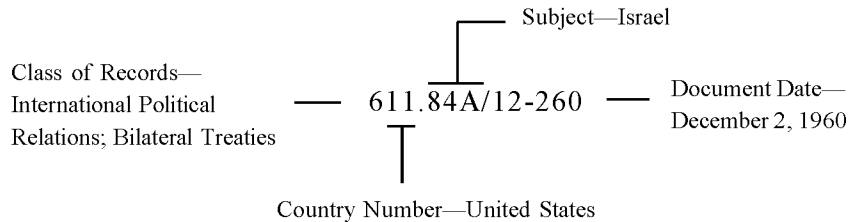

In a small number of instances, documents were assigned erroneous or incomplete decimal numbers. UPA has included, in brackets, corrected decimal entries. In addition, misfiled decimal number documents have also been included in brackets. See, e.g., 5: 0888–0890, 0893 and 12: 0917–0919.

CLASS 6. Example, 684A.86/11-2061

684A.86/11-2061 indicates a document dated November 20, 1961, relating to the bilateral relations between Israel (84A) and the Arab League (86).

CLASS 6. Example, 611.84A/12-260

611.84A/12-260 indicates a document dated December 2, 1960, relating to the bilateral relations between the United States of America (11) and Israel (84A).

Note: For the convenience of the researcher, wherever a specific classification number totals more than one hundred pages, a breakdown of the material by month and year is provided. Where applicable, major subjects have been included with the month and year breakdown.

SUBJECT INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major topics in this microform publication. The first number after an entry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which the subject begins. Hence, 5: 0892 directs the researcher to Frame 0892 of Reel 5. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial segment of this guide, the researcher will find topics arranged in the order in which they appear on the film.

This subject index provides an entry under each of the topic names assigned by the State Department in its decimal number classification system for which documents appear in the collection. In order to avoid confusion, the term "Foreign relations" has been substituted for the State Department's term "Political relations." Additional terms have been supplied to provide more detailed topical access. Terminology and spellings are those used in the original documents. Researchers may consult the acronym list on page xxvii.
