

LexisNexis® Expert Witness Checklist

Experts play a critical role in today's litigation, so you need to be prepared with more information about each expert—whether it is one you are thinking of retaining or one identified by the opposing side.

Fortunately for you, LexisNexis® has more information about experts than any other online provider¹—more news, more public records, more transcripts and even more verdict and settlement information. To assist you in using these resources, we've created this checklist.

On the back page, get details on special LexisNexis expert witness resources—such as report products that search many sources simultaneously and compile the results, as well as a new service from LexisNexis, made available through the acquisition of IDEX®, that gives litigators additional research support.

LexisNexis® Expert Witness Checklist

Source:	What Litigators Need to Know:	At LexisNexis Total Litigator Go To:	At lexis.com Go To:
<input checked="" type="radio"/> Federal & State Opinions (and non-U.S. e.g., Canadian)	Case opinions can be useful for finding challenges to an expert's testimony—whether successful or not. (And don't forget to research Canadian opinions).	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Case-Related Information > Then select a source	Legal tab > Cases - U.S. > Federal & State Cases, Combined
<input checked="" type="radio"/> Daubert Tracker—Case Reports	Daubert Tracker Case Reports summarize opinions in which expert testimony has been challenged. NOTE! Editors correct misspellings of experts' names that sometimes occur in opinions and also track down the names of experts who are not named in opinions. Plus, some reports cover state trial court opinions not online otherwise.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Case-Related Information > Daubert Case Tracker Reports	Legal tab > Expert Witness Analysis, Jury Verdicts and Settlements > Daubert Tracker Case Reports
<input checked="" type="radio"/> Verdict Reports NEW! Through the combination of various LexisNexis verdict sources and the recent addition of Expert Witness Verdicts & Settlements (IDEX), LexisNexis now has largest, most comprehensive collection of verdicts & settlements, including details on settled cases retrieved directly from law firms nationwide.	Verdict reports usually indicate which experts have worked on particular lawsuits, so use them to evaluate potential biases (e.g., Does he/she repeatedly testify for the same attorney/firm or the same side?). Moreover, because these reports usually include the case name, case number, jurisdiction and the attorneys involved, you can use them to find additional information about experts (e.g., reports, transcripts, etc.). NOTE! Search verdicts nationwide via a group source because experts often testify outside their resident state.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Case-Related Information > Then select a source	Legal tab > Expert Witness Analysis, Jury Verdicts and Settlements > Then select a source

LexisNexis Total Litigator (available via lexis.com or at www.totallitigator.com) is a task-based research platform, i.e., it suggests appropriate resources based on the task the researcher chooses. In addition to individual sources, you can select the Multiple Sources options after choosing Investigate an Expert at the Gather Intelligence tab. The Multiple Sources options are designed to be complementary not duplicative and to give you access to the vast collection of expert witness resources LexisNexis offers (when you select all available checkboxes).

1. Comparisons based on data available as of May 2010.

Source:	What Litigators Need to Know:	At LexisNexis Total Litigator Go To:	At lexis.com Go To:
● Statements (including Transcripts, Affidavits and Reports) NEW! The latest addition of transcripts and depositions from IDEX gives you 99,000+ full-text depositions and trial transcripts.	Transcripts of prior testimony given by experts can be used to understand their “attitude,” evasiveness, and, of course, prior statements that may contradict testimony they are likely to give in a deposition or at trial. Affidavits, declarations and reports can also be used to find contradictory statements.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Case-Related Information > Expert Witness Transcripts and Depositions (Including IDEX) or Expert Witness Affidavits and Reports	Legal tab > Expert Witness Analysis, Jury Verdicts and Settlements > Expert Witness Transcripts and Depositions (Including IDEX)
● Curricula Vitae and Résumés NEW! With the addition of IDEX information, lexis.com now gives you access to more than 13,000 CVs and r sum s.	How is an expert presenting himself? How does he describe his strengths and specialties?	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Case-Related Information > Expert Witness Curricula Vitae and Resumes (IDEX)	Legal tab > Expert Witness Analysis, Jury Verdicts and Settlements > Expert Witness Curricula Vitae and Resumes (IDEX)
● Briefs & Motions	The lexis.com collection of briefs and motions (e.g., “All Federal and State Briefs and Motions, Combined”) can uncover motions to exclude, bar, limit, strike, etc., the testimony of certain experts.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Case-Related Information > All Federal & State Briefs and Motions, Combined	Legal tab > Court Records, Briefs and Filings > Then select a source
● Expert Directories	Check out how an expert has related her credentials via a marketing tool, such as an expert directory (e.g., Martindale-Hubbell® Experts & Services Directory or JurisPro®). By comparing various versions of biographical information, you may be able to determine if an expert has “fudged” credentials somewhere along the line.	Gather Intelligence tab > Find an Expert > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Biographical Information > Combined Expert Directories	Legal tab > Expert Witness Analysis, Jury Verdicts and Settlements > Expert Witness Analysis > Combined Expert Directories (For free access to the Experts & Services Directory from Martindale-Hubbell, go to experts.martindale.com)
● Judgments & Liens	Because experts are like everyone else—they sue people and they get sued—it can be important to search for judgments and liens to better understand those lawsuits.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Public Records (Courts & Filings) > Judgments & Liens	Public Records tab > Judgments & Liens
● Dockets and Docket Summaries	Docket Summaries indicate which lawsuits name an expert as a part. And dockets can be used to find reference to documents related to an expert’s work such as motions to exlude, affidavits, etc.	Enter your search in the Search Dockets & Documents box on the main Total Litigator menu To search docket summaries, go to the Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Public Records (Courts and Filings) > Then select a source	Public Records tab > Public Records > Find Filings > Civil & Criminal Court Filings and Regulatory Actions > Then select a source
● Arbitration Awards, Decisions & Opinions	Some of these awards, decisions and opinions mention experts’ names.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Arbitration-Related Info > Then select a source	Legal tab > Area of Law - By Topic > Labor & Employment > Find Arbitration Materials > Then select a source
● Agency Decisions (Federal & State)	Because many experts work for agencies or testify before them, it may be fruitful to search agency decisions and then follow up to get transcripts of testimony, filed reports, etc.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Agency Information > Then select a source	Legal tab > Federal Legal - U.S. > Find Statutes, Regulations, Administrative Materials & Court Rules > Administrative Agency Materials > Federal Agency Decisions, Combined Legal tab > States Legal - U.S. > Combined States > Find Administrative Materials & Regulations > Agency Decisions > State Administrative Agency Decisions

Source:	What Litigators Need to Know:	At LexisNexis Total Litigator Go To:	At lexis.com Go To:
● News	What an expert has said or done may come back to haunt him or her in the future. It's absolutely critical to search expansive collections of news to uncover comments made to the press, articles written, letters to the editor authored, even blog posts, etc.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > News > Then select a source	To search the various News & Business sources available via lexis.com, select the News & Business tab
● Professional Licensing Information & Sanctions NEW! State license discipline searches can be conducted for you through LexisNexis Full-Service Expert Witness Search powered by IDEX. (See page 4 for more details.)	Just because an expert states he/she is licensed in a profession within a particular state does not necessarily mean it's true. So double-check such claims by searching professional licenses online. (And don't forget sanction and disciplinary information.)	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Public Records (Licenses) > Then select a source Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Biographical Information > New York Physician Disciplinary Decisions	Public Records tab > Professional Licenses
● Criminal History Records	Some experts have criminal backgrounds. They likely won't tell you, so you have to find major convictions yourself, especially ones concerning honesty.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Public Records (Courts and Filings) tab > Criminal Records	Public Records tab > Criminal Records
● Law Review Articles	Though seemingly an unlikely source of information about experts, law review articles often mention experts, their publications or their testimony (and challenges to it).	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Miscellaneous Sources > Law Reviews All	Legal tab > Law Reviews & Journals > Then select a source you need
● Congressional Information	Prominent experts submit documents (e.g., letters, reports, etc.) to Congress and some actually testify before Congressional Committees. Track down what an expert actually submitted and/or said.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > News > Congressional Record	Legal > Legislation & Politics - U.S. & U.K. > U.S. Congress > Then select a source
● Technical Journal Articles NEW! Article searches—Searches for Articles Naming an Expert and Searches for Articles Written by an Expert—can be conducted for you through LexisNexis Full-Service Expert Witness Search powered by IDEX. (See page 4 for more details.)	NOTE! Do not rely on article/publication listings given to you by experts. Find publications yourself, e.g., through Elsevier Full-Text Journals and MEDLINE® References. Then compare them to the list submitted by the expert. You may find an omission or inaccuracy.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Miscellaneous Sources > Elsevier Full-Text Journals, All or MEDLINE References	News & Business > Science & Technology > Elsevier Full-Text Journals, All News & Business > Science & Technology > Medical & Health Care > MEDLINE Review Article References, All
● Patent Applications	Some experts are also patent holders, so valuable information may be gleaned from patent applications filed by those experts.	Gather Intelligence tab > Investigate an Expert > Individual Sources > Miscellaneous Sources > Utility, Design and Plant Patents	Legal tab > Patent Law > Find Patents

Specialized LexisNexis Expert Witness Searches and Report Products

LexisNexis® Expert Analyzer (report product):

LexisNexis Expert Analyzer simultaneously searches 28 expert-related sources from lexis.com, including case opinions, Daubert Tracker—Case Reports, verdict reports, agency decisions, expert directories, news and more. Importantly LexisNexis® Analyzer tests the search and shows you how many results potentially exist in each available source—before you incur any cost.

LexisNexis Expert Analyzer is available at lexis.com on the main menu of the Legal tab. Select Analyzer Litigation Reports: Company, Judge, Arbitrator, Expert, Counsel and then select the Expert tab. If you are using Total Litigator, select Investigate An Expert under the Gather Intelligence tab then choose Expert Analyzer.

CourtLink® Single Search:

CourtLink Single Search simultaneously searches the CourtLink collection of nearly 100 million federal and state dockets and court-filed documents—and the collection is growing rapidly. Use Single Search to uncover a wide variety of critical dockets and document information useful for investigating experts, such as affidavits, declarations, transcripts of testimony, motions to exclude and more.

Find the CourtLink Single Search box on the main LexisNexis Total Litigator screen or enter your CourtLink subscription throughout lexis.com.

Comprehensive Person Report, powered by SmartLinx® (report product):

The Public Records Comprehensive Person Report combs through billions of public records in a single search. The SmartLinx® data-matching technology can not only relate diverse records to a single person or entity but also retrieve public records you might miss elsewhere due to misspellings and name variations. Because the original documents are linked to the proper entity, you can quickly access them to learn even more. Such a report is invaluable for researching experts because it can be used to better understand their relationships (especially potential conflicts of interest), financial status and more.

Find the Comprehensive Person Report at the top of the lexis.com Public Records Tab. It's also available at LexisNexis Total Litigator on the Expert menu under the Gather Intelligence tab, Investigate an Expert.

No time for research? Leave the Searching to Us: LexisNexis® Full-Service Expert Witness Search powered by IDEX®:

As part of the recent LexisNexis acquisition of IDEX®, the preeminent source for expert witness information, LexisNexis is now able to offer a service to help overworked litigators. And it's surprisingly affordable.

Just call 800-521-5596. Or go to www.lexisnexis.com/idx (select Join IDEX and complete the quick, one-time registration form). You can also link to the site when you select Expert Witness Analysis, Jury Verdicts and Settlements at the lexis.com Legal tab (Select Expert Witness Analysis).

You select from available IDEX data searches, including testimonial history reports, state license discipline searches, challenge searches and more. (Researchers can even help attempt to identify an expert in jurisdictions of limited discovery.) IDEX research specialists complete the research and fax or e-mail a report to you.

Consider LexisNexis Full-Service Expert Witness Search powered by IDEX when you are:

- Short on research time (and/or support staff).
- Not familiar with expert witness research. (You can get some assistance.)
- Looking for a summarized results report. (And if you need a testimony transcript procured, IDEX can try to retrieve it for you.)
- Trying to identify an expert, e.g., the opposing expert, when you don't have a name.
- Looking for expert witness information not available through lexis.com, e.g., state discipline board data.
- Researching a common expert name, like John Smith. IDEX assigns each expert a unique identifier so they can connect that expert's available information—and weed out irrelevant facts.