Introduction

The LexisNexis® Total Research System provides a wealth of sources, services, and features to help you prepare and research a potential or ongoing lawsuit. Use it to research the client and all potential claims, analyze the law, determine the appropriate venue, evaluate potential witnesses, judges, and opposing counsel, and be aware of the financial status of all parties to the litigation. Beyond cases and codes, you’ll find the following:

Treatises
The LexisNexis® collection of treatises covers a wide variety of practice areas from highly regarded publishers, including LexisNexis Matthew Bender, American Bar Association, and Practising Law Institute. Take advantage of publications such as Moore’s Federal Practice®, Weinstein’s Federal Evidence, Bender’s Federal Practice Forms®, Federal Litigation Guide, and much more.

On the LexisNexis services, many treatises have interactive tables of contents that help you get directly to the information you need.

Mealey Publications
Since 1984, Mealey Publications & Conferences Group has provided timely, comprehensive reports on the most topical issues facing the litigation community. Mealey authors are journalists, including many from daily newspapers. With more than 40 titles in the areas of toxic torts, insurance, drugs and medical devices, intellectual property, health care, employment, and international arbitration, Mealey has gained a stellar reputation for fast, balanced reporting—providing plaintiff, defense, and in-house counsel with current, highly targeted legal news reports.

LexisNexis® Public Records Collection
More than 3.5 billion individual public records—get the facts you need for discovery, when you need them, from a single location. No other online source matches the depth and breadth of the content you’ll find on LexisNexis. Find person and real property locators; business and corporation information; bankruptcy filings; UCC filings; judgments and liens; court filings; jury verdicts; licenses; marriage, divorce, and death records; and more.

LexisNexis® SmartLinx™
An intelligent report product that organizes a mountain of facts from public records and pinpoints only the person, organization or location you need. The SmartLinx service quickly locates and associates information that would take hours or days to cross-reference using traditional methods. At lightning speed, SmartLinx retrieves names, addresses, phone numbers, and other information and logically links the data to the appropriate people, businesses, and locations. Then the SmartLinx service’s sophisticated software analyzes each record created by the links to determine if the entities named, regardless of possible spelling, formatting, or other variations, are actually the same.

Intuitive Online Features
Enhance your legal research of discovery issues with these online features that can help you work faster and attain more accurate results.

- Speed your research with Lexis® Search Advisor, a topical classification system more current than headnotes and key numbers. One screen pulls together relevant case law (both published and unpublished), treatises, law reviews, and legal news for your topic.
- Find relevant cases quickly with easy-to-read LexisNexis® Case Summaries. Written by attorney editors, Case Summaries review each case’s procedural history, provide an overview of the court’s holdings, and relate the ultimate outcome.
- Review the main points of law, in the court’s own language, right up front with LexisNexis® Headnotes. From there, you can find more cases with similar headnotes or with closely matching language in the opinions (More Like This Headnote). You can also find all case headnotes written for a specific Lexis Search Advisor topic (Retrieve All Headnotes). As always, you can still link directly to Lexis Search Advisor to review cases, analytical materials, or legal news relevant to that LexisNexis Headnote.
LexisNexis® Applied Discovery®
Electronic discovery has evolved from a tool employed in only the largest, most document-intensive cases into a mainstream practice that plays a role in many cases. LexisNexis Applied Discovery is the leading provider of electronic discovery services to the country’s top law firms and corporations. Unlike the vendors that evolved from the paper-intensive scanning and coding era, Applied Discovery® was founded on the belief that someday, virtually 100% of all new documents would be created and stored electronically. That day has come. With Applied Discovery, you will be ready.

LexisNexis® CourtLink®
More than access to dockets online, CourtLink® is your Web-based solution for trial preparation and litigation management that can help you win more trials and force better settlements. CourtLink provides online access to more than 200 million court records, including dockets, claims, judgments, sentences, and charges, from civil, criminal, and bankruptcy cases in more than 4,000 courts.

The LexisNexis® Version of Time Matters® Software
Time Matters is the leading law firm practice management software. It’s a multi-person, multi-location, full-featured, and fully integrated system. Time Matters seamlessly integrates true real-time group calendars, matter/project management, client relations management, billing and expense control, document management and automation, and communication management (e-mail, fax, and phone).

With the Time Matters Civil Litigation Feature Package, you can save time and effort with templates, tools, and forms customized to facilitate, organize, and control your trial practice. This supplementary software works seamlessly with Time Matters, providing you the best in law-office efficiency.

Virtually Every Source You Need, Easily Accessible
Just select “Litigation” from the Legal tab on the main www.lexis.com screen and you’ll find it easy to take advantage of our comprehensive collection of litigation sources.
Litigation Research Task Pages

These pages simplify litigation research and put pertinent resources at your fingertips. Use them for:

- Searching primary-law materials, secondary sources, practice forms, public records, and more—from a single page.
- Fast access to current legal news information.
- Task-based research. For example, focus on research about drafting certain types of documents, conducting discovery, medical conditions, conducting appeals, etc.
- Access to LexisNexis report products and other robust tools, such as LexisNexis® Company Analyzer for due diligence, LexisNexis® Company Dossier for current company snapshots, LexisNexis® SmartLinx™ for pinpointing people and business connections, LexisNexis® CourtLink® court docket information, Mealey Publications, Martindale-Hubbell® listings, and e-Discovery solutions.
- Fast links to LexisNexis “how-to” guides as well as to other important sites for litigators, including the National Institute for Trial Advocacy (NITA), the ABA Section of Litigation, other bar association Web sites, a legal Web site directory, and more.
To access the Litigation Research Task Pages, just click on the Research Tasks tab on the main www.lexis.com screen. Then select the appropriate Research Task Page from the list.

You can set the Research Tasks tab as a default starting location for your www.lexis.com research. Click Preferences on the right side of the upper navigation bar. Under Start Location, click Research Tasks, then click Set.

To set the Federal Litigation Research Task Page as your default Research Task Page, just click the Set as my default Research Task Page link at the top of that page.

There is no additional subscription charge to use the Litigation Research Task Pages, and most sources included on these pages are already available via your LexisNexis subscription. If you do select a source that is outside your subscription, a message on your screen will notify you before you incur any charges.

NOTE: Currently, the Federal Litigation, California Litigation, and New York Litigation Research Task Pages are available, and more states will be available in the near future.
